JUDY JANES

DISCOVER FAMILY HISTORY IN ONLINE NEWSPAPERS

Judy Janes is past President of the Ventura County Genealogical Society where she still serves on the Executive Board. Judy is a third-generation Californian who has traced her family extensively through New York, New England, the South and California. She has used newspapers extensively in her genealogical research and has been richly rewarded.

Newspapers have been published in the United States of America for over 300 years. Digital online newspapers now provide a powerful tool to discover incredible details about our ancestors' lives that are provided by no other historical resource. While genealogists most commonly seek such items as births, marriages and deaths, newspapers also recorded social events, real estate transactions, probate court and legal notices, travel, lost animals and all of the other important events that took place in our ancestors' day-to-day lives.

Each online digital newspaper collection requires a different search technique. Come learn how to find online collections and the tips and tricks needed to make a search for your ancestors successful.
